Top Tips

School holidays can be tricky for some children and young people – especially if they like each day to follow a set pattern and benefit from a structured timetable. Having plans in place can help you and your children to feel more relaxed.

What are your coping strategies: just because it's a holiday doesn't mean that you have to change the way you manage stressful situations – if something works for you or your child/young person use it.

Prepare your child/young person: visual timetables, pictures, photographs, objects and social stories can all be useful tools to help prepare your child/young person.

Print off a week-to-view calendar: and add in pictures of your planned activities during the holidays (divide into morning, lunch, evening etc). This will help your child to know exactly what will be happening and when.

Roll with it: sometimes things won't go according to the plan – don't let this become a source of stress –have a back-up plan or work with what is happening rather than against it.

Timetables

Using a visual timetable at home may help your child/ren to follow the plan for the day and feel less worried about the changes. This could be done using a timetable of the whole day or by using a now / next board. There is more information on both of these ideas here: Visual Timetables - ELSA Support \(elsa- support.co.uk\)

Tips from other parents

- Try not to plan too much – my daughter struggles if we are rushing around all week, we now plan a couple of outings and spend more time just chilling out at home.
 - Don't be afraid to say no! I found myself agreeing to meet up with lots of different friends without considering the impact on my daughter's wellbeing.
 - Take time for yourself if you can. Even if it is just a soak in the bath that time is so valuable.
 - If you are taking out a fussy eater then take along your own food. One less thing to worry about
