Bath

Are you considering a staycation with your family this year?

HeatingForce.co.uk researchers found that, taking into consideration factors such as annual sunshine, rainfall, Airbnb prices, restaurant ratings, alongside access to parks and outdoor activities, their top three cities are a surprising choice!

1 Norwich is perfect for those looking for a real holiday feel, with high annual hours of sunshine and good restaurant ratings.

2 Cambridge offers visitors plenty of parks and outdoor activities with low rainfall.

3 Oxford, known for its beauty, ranks among the highest for average annual hours of sunshine and restaurant ratings!

Alternatively, a recent study conducted by OnBuy.com found that York, Bath and Perth were named the best cities for active and diverse breaks.

It is going to be busy in the UK this year, so a bit of forward planning is essential! With most UK cities you are never too far from rural sites for leisurely walks or challenging hikes, whilst still being based in a buzzing location with museums, markets and entertainment for all tastes.

Do a bit of extra research beforehand and book the key places you want to eat, drink and visit during your city break. This will give you peace of mind that you won't get turned away.

Budgeting is key! If you have planned and booked activities and restaurants in advance you will be able to gauge your budget better. However, allow for unseen extra costs and emergencies. Happy holidays!
